Cannabis Grower And Store Tour

Here's an excellent chance to learn about the latest information on pot growing, new products and be able to get a clear and easier understanding of the whole subject. We will visit a shop in Seattle that grows the plants under controlled conditions and learn about the different parts of the plant and the growing process. Then we will take the tour down the hall to see into a cannabis extraction lab and talk with one of the scientists who will tell us all about extraction. We'll discuss different consumption methods, different levels of experience that cannabis offers and see products that are popular with the senior crowd. Finally everyone is free to roam around the store to view the products and talk with friendly guides to get your questions answered. Lunch after the tour on your own.
